Funds Performance Report OCTOBER 2015

IGI Life Insurance Limited

Macro Review and Outlook:

CPI for the month of October clocked in at 1.61% YoY. Headline inflation has bottomed out and rose from 1.32% to 1.61% with a monthly hike of 0.49% mainly resulting from rise in perishable food items. CPI is expected to rise in the ensuing months as the previously favorable base effect reverses. Although real interest rate of 4.4% still leaves room for another rate cut, headwinds have built up with a weaker currency and higher inflationary pressure as base effect is removed.

The current account number for Sep-15 clocked in at positive USD 309mn, with remittances up sharply by 16% MoM. 1QFY16 current account deficit numbers now stand at mere USD 0.11bn, as opposed to USD 1.63bn witnessed in the corresponding period last year. Much of this improvement is attributable to 25% improvement in the trade account during 1QFY16.

Going forward, we expect the current account deficit to largely remain subdued in the near term in line with lower oil prices. The account shall also get some support from the 2.6% Pak Rupee depreciation witnessed over FY16TD, wherein the adjustment took place predominantly to rebalance the currency in comparison to the region.

FX reserves continued to remain firm near 20bn mark that continued to support the rupee which though lost some ground towards the month end

Equity Market Review and Outlook:

The KSE-100 index bounced back sharply in October by 6.1% on the back of result season and clarity on regulatory inquiries. The market was able to breach the 34,000 level over the first half of the month, but persistent foreign selling limited further upside – with liquidity constraints visible once again over the month and the market liquidity remained sluggish at average daily volumes of 173 million shares against last month’s average of 183 million shares.

Sector wise return analysis shows that Automobiles, Oil & Gas and Pharmaceuticals outperformed the index among key sectors, while Food producers saw value erosion during the month. Auto stocks rallied on the back of surprisingly positive quarterly results and persistent fall in steel prices. The Oil & Gas sector outperformed despite mixed results and no substantial change in oil prices. We attribute this to rising confidence that the worst is probably over in terms of earnings decline and that oil prices have bottomed out.

November monetary policy announcement remains an important trigger for the market with a 50-100 bps reduction would be considered a positive surprise for the equity market. Outlook remains favorable for Power, Oil & Gas and Banking Sectors where short term performances may vary but long term valuations offer significant potential for patient investors.

The improving macro environment supports the case for rerating as KSE100 Index trades at a P/E of 9x based on prospective earnings against regional average in excess

Money Market Review and Outlook:

Strong sentiment of rate cut has been built in the market which is quite evident from the movement in market rates of Government securities from the mid of the month. Yield has slightly shifted downward over the course of the month. The volatility however increased due to a contrary view of stable rate outlook based on expected inflation uptick in key variables including fuel and commodity prices. We believe that the era of historically low inflation has most likely subsided, which is evident from the fact that inflation for the month of October clocked at 1.61% (September: 1.32%). For the rest of FY16, inflation is expected to average around 3.75% - 4.25% if the SBP maintains the policy rate in its upcoming monetary policy (scheduled in November), the yield curve may shift upward from the current levels.
